Verbal Description

I am reading this as a molded portion from an ocarina or whistle, even though no chamber is present. It could possibly be some sort of adornment from a vessel, but I have not seen this used in such a fashion. Although it is heavily worn, it is possible to see that this is a monkey with earflares. The monkey's left arm is bent up; no hand is indicated, but it would be right behind the ear flare. The features are poorly modeled, or perhaps, ^{this} resulted from an older worn mold. Cuts and trimming marks are not clear, but I do think this was molded. The hole between the arm and head, however, was pierced from front to back. There are traces of white slip on the face, top of head, neck, and shoulders.
